and decide which ones are the most significant.

PRESIDENT: Senator Koch.

SENATOR KOCH: Well, would you just leave it hang right there in Select File?

SENATOR FOWLER: Well they would stay there till the others catch up with it. Like I indicate, it's a year until the next election. So I don't see a rush to move these out. I think this would be some of the more orderly procedures that I know Senator Koch is interested in having instituted in this body.

SENATOR KOCH: That may be fine Senator Fowler, but at least you can put a one after it so you know it was number one and will be number one.

PRESIDENT: Senator Syas.

SENATOR SYAS: Well I oppose the motion. Let's get back to a little fundamentals. I was on the Constitutional Revision Committee. Senator Hasebroock was also on it and Senator Whitney. A committee of twelve, three elected lay people elected by this Legislature, three appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, three appointed by the Governor, and three, one from each congressional district that you elected in this Legislature. At that particular time we brought in, I think, about 25 recommendations. We put most of them on the ballot. Senator Luedtke, I think you were involved in this. We put most of them on the ballot. We had great success. I think we only lost one or two. It isn't the amount of things that you put on the ballot that confuses people, it's the lack of campaigning for them that . . . When people have no knowledge of what you're doing, and this Legislature hasn't seen fit to appropriate money to sell these constitutional amendments, people vote no if they do not understand them. I don't care if there is one or twenty-one. Now these are bills like anything else. It isn't the amount you put on the ballot. I oppose this motion. Let these things take their usual course. If they are out here on the floor and you want to kill them, kill them. We're probably going to kill some in committee. Even though elections . . . you can't hold this thing up. Kill them if you don't want them, or pass them. But don't hold them up. I'm opposed to such a motion and I think it's just interference by some people that do not know the background of these constitutional amendments, do not know historically the constitutional amendments and how they have been handled in the past. We've had no difficulty in the past. I think some of you are possibly afraid to vote on them. I don't know. If you don't like them, kill them. I've got one coming along one of these days. If you don't like it, kill it. You've done it before. I've lost bills before. I think Senator Hasebroock might explain to you, if he so desires, how we handled all the constitutional amendments that the Revision Commission put out. We had no difficulty . . . a great success, as I say. I think we should let them take their course as usual. If Senator Fowler, or anybody doesn't want that constitutional amendment up there concerning the Lieutenant Governor, kill it. Vote against it.
